A rose garden was created by Maud Messel in the 1920 's as part of her romantic vision for the planting schemes to surround the medieval style house. She filled it with herbs and old fashioned roses, sourcing many of the plants from gardening friends, swapping cuttings and plants from a variety of rare species. Roses framed against yew hedging

The Rose Garden | National Trust

A rose garden or rosarium is a garden or park, often open to the public, used to present and grow various types of garden roses or rose species. Designs vary tremendously and roses may be displayed alongside other plants or grouped by individual variety, colour or class in rose beds.

Mellon 's Rose Garden was vibrant and lively; Melania 's by contrast, is much more muted, with white and pastel roses. She uprooted the crab apple trees — which the administration says will be replanted "elsewhere on the grounds" — and went heavy on the hedges, replacing the brightly colored flowers with pale blooms that, for Twitter at least, do not spark joy.

The phrase "Rose Garden strategy" (such as a re-election strategy) refers to staying inside or on the grounds of the White House as opposed to traveling throughout the country. For example, Jimmy Carter's initial efforts to end the Iran hostage crisis (1979 – 1981) were a Rose Garden strategy because he mostly held discussions with his close advisers in the White House. On July 25, 1994 a declaration of peace between Israel and Jordan was signed in the Rose Garden.

On Saturday, Melania Trump announced the addition of Noguchi ' s " Floor Frame " sculpture to the White House Rose Garden. The sculpture, with its minimalist geometric quality, is of bronze casts and mimics the roots of a plant or tree that juts out and appears to enter the ground. Mrs. Trump ' s choice of the Noguchi sculpture is particularly significant because it is the first art piece by an Asian American to be featured in the White House collection.
